

JUDO SOUTH AFRICA
CODE OF CONDUCT
FOR ANY PERSON REPRESENTING JUDO SA

In accepting the national colours (Protea and Judo SA) as the sports insignia of South Africa, Sportsmen and sportswomen, their coaches, managers and other Officials involved in the participation of South Africa in the international Sports arena accept to conduct themselves at all times in a manner that will benefit and do credit to the insignia under which they have been chosen to represent their sport. They also agree to do the same for Judo South Africa and SASCOC as the custodian of the National Colours and finally their country, in whose name they participate.

In order to ensure that recipients of national colours or designated officials behave in a manner that suits their status, they are obliged to confirm with this code of conduct to which its representative athletes and officials adhere; after all, a representative side or the individual participants are ambassadors for the federation and South Africa.

A representative team member will be furnished with a copy of the code of conduct which he/she must sign when being selected for an event. Failure to sign the relevant document will disqualify the person from participation or representing Judo South Africa.

It is furthermore the duty of the management to ensure that everyone concerned strictly adheres to such a code and to introduce fitting disciplinary measures if, as, and when necessary.

Apart from the above, Judo South Africa itself has the responsibility to ensure that South African representative sports groups are a credit to the country and at all times worthy ambassadors while representing the high ideals that the SASCOC had set for sports participation. Generally acceptable and basic norms need to be upheld at all times.

The following guidelines have been compiled by SASCOC to serve as broad criteria for all those involved in representative participation in order to ensure basic uniformity, group unity, discipline and a friendly and comfortable disposition within the group or team.

An appeal is made to all those involved (national federation office bearers, officials/tour management, participants, and coaches) to observe their Code of Conduct at all times. In the interest of South Africa and of sport in general, it is vital that the conduct of those representing the country will at all times be above reproach. If anyone should infringe the Code, disciplinary steps in the discretion of the national federation and the SASCOC Board may be taken against such a person.

It is important to note that under special circumstances, SASCOC reserves the right to withdraw national colours awarded at the time for good cause. Judo SA also reserves the right to withdraw awarded colours.

Travelling abroad is often a new experience for some. There are different customs and attitudes to adapt to, language barriers to overcome, media to face, and many more. National federations must ensure that team management consists of seasoned and responsible adults who can provide the necessary guidance to young and/or inexperienced team members.

International participation is the end result of long hours of hard training, of sacrifices and of absolute dedication. Only the very best in a sport can achieve this level. To represent one's country is a singular honour reserved for a selected few and the ultimate honour would be to be adjudicated the victor. At all times, however, and without exception, this honour must only be bestowed on him or her who competed fairly. Under no circumstances ever must such a victory, or for that matter the mere participation in an event, be enhanced due to unfair methods being employed be it by cheating, unsportsmanlike behaviour, or worse, by employing methods (like doping) to enhance one's performance, thus providing an unfair advantage over fellow competitors.

It is the unconditional view of Judo South Africa that indulgence in the use of alcohol and tobacco is not part of the make-up of the serious sportsman or sportswoman. Officials in charge of participants have a particular responsibility in this regard to set the right example.

Acceptable behaviour has many facets which a representative of his/her country and sport must understand and accept as vital to his/her role as an ambassador.

These include:

1. The wearing of any designated official dress of the team where applicable
2. Ensuring a neat and appropriate mode of dress at other less formal occasions
3. Ensuring that all competition gear is clean and in good condition
4. Maintaining a high standard of general conduct, with particular emphasis on:-
 - 4.1 Bad language, poor table etiquette, rowdy behaviour (even when celebrating a victory) and any form of vulgarity likely to offend the hosts, officials and others.
 - 4.2 Respect for fellow travellers, hotel staff, hosts, speakers at events and functions
 - 4.3 Respect for any property, accommodation or transport provided for their use and convenience at any time.
 - 4.4 Punctual attendance at any training, weigh-in, function, event or outing scheduled
 - 4.5 Misuse or over-indulgence in alcohol. In this regard the following rules apply
 - 4.5.1 Use of alcohol by any minor (groups 1 – 5) is prohibited
 - 4.5.2 Use of alcohol by seniors is restricted to 2 beers a day (0.08% limit) - with the express permission of the coach/manager in charge (when appointed).
